

Safety for the Bread Winners.

A clear, plain statement from a hardworking man telling how he was saved from a position of great physical and mental weakness, and was able to provide for his family.

Almost everybody is familiar with the signs of an approaching break-down due to overwork.

Almost every hard worker has felt at some time the physical prostration, the feeling of constant weariness, the dread of collapse, on entering upon a fresh day's work without sufficient strength for its duties.

John P. Sonnhaller, of 58 Melrose Avenue, Cleveland, O., is strong and athletic and has a splendid physique. He is married and has great pride in his family.

His daily work requires severe physical exercise. He is yardmaster of the Zettelmeyer Coal Company, Nos. 25 to 31 Commercial Street.

He discovered recently that he had overtaxed his strength.

All the symptoms of over-work distressed him. He describes them in a way that thousands will instantly recognize:

"The blood would rush suddenly to my head," he said, "and I would almost faint. My strength was leaving me. Every part of my body seemed to be out of order."

"Strong as my muscles were, I would be very weak. I was nervous and my mind was distressed as well as my body. When I awoke in the morning, I decided to think of the hard day's work ahead of me. I was altogether wretched."

"I expected to break down completely. I could not sleep, lost appetite and could neither rest nor enjoy simple recreation."

"Warm weather was approaching and I became more and more depressed every day."

"I was tired all over nearly all the time. One day I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People had cured people who suffered exactly as I had suffered."

"I doubted whether they could cure me but decided to try."

"The result astonished me."

"Almost the first pill I took made me feel better. That terrible weak and helpless feeling left me almost from the start."

"After taking half a dozen of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I slept soundly, as I had not done for months. Then my old keen appetite and relish for food came back, and my recovery was a question only of a few days. Of course, with sound sleep and plenty of food I gained strength and vigor rapidly."

Mr. Sonnhaller's work required hard physical exertion, but the symptoms are much the same when a break-down occurs in a brain worker, and, as the experiences of thousands of sufferers have proved, the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is just as great in such cases. They restore the digestion to healthy vigor, purify and enrich the blood and supply the elements needed to build up the wasted nerve forces.

All druggists sell these pills; one box for 50 cents, or six boxes for $2.50.

Mrs. Emma Ausmus Dead.

Mrs. Emma Ausmus died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moss, 210 South Cottonwood street, in Iola, Sunday morning, October 22, in her 27th year. The funeral was conducted this morning from the house, Rev. Leonard officiating, and interment was made in the Iola cemetery.

Emma E. Moss was born in December, 1873, in Wichita, Kansas, but spent most of her childhood in Allen county. She was married in 1893 to Mr. Jas. A. Ausmus of Sedgewick county, and removed to Oklahoma, where she lived until about two years ago, when she returned to Kansas on account of poor health. For the last three months she has been at her parents' home where she received every care, but consumption had obtained a strong hold on her and death resulted. She was the fifth child in a family of thirteen, and leaves, in addition to her husband and three children, her parents and four brothers and five sisters to mourn her loss. Since her nineteenth year she has been a member of the Baptist church.

The bereaved relatives have the sincere sympathy of all their friends.

Little Bits of War.

As the boys tell of the war they tell it in small patches. During one of the hottest fights, when everybody was hating behind anything that offered, Fred Nelson in command of an ammunition train was shouted to by an officer standing behind a tree to "bring up the ammunition." Fred took a look in the direction of the voice from behind his cover and seeing the space thoroughly permeated with flying lead called back, "By whose authority do you issue that order?"

Young Hamilton, of Coffey county, was up on a church tower surveying the landscape for Filipinos. As he scanned the country with his field glasses he noticed a war ship in the bay. As he looked the huge guns with a sudden swerve pointed directly at the tower and aided by the glasses he could look right down into the barrels. He said afterwards that he thought his time had come and expected the old tower to be tumbled to pieces. As he prepared a little prayer to say the guns swerved again and sent their shells off to one side. They had been getting the range from that tower.

Bert Mitchell was made First Lieutenant and commanded a company in some of the fighting. During one advance a deep river was to be crossed and the water would have reached above his head. The men in the company were unusually large and Mitch said he had it all figured out in his mind to have the first four (six-footers) carry him across.

It's An Ill Wind, You Know.

While the smelters and Joplin zinc miners are at war about the proper prices of Jack there are a good many people who feel a large content. If the prices are maintained by the miners there will be a rich field opened up in Arkansas as soon as the railroads get there and if the prices are not maintained the Joplin operators will have incurred the enmity of the smelters to an extent which will allow new mines to get on the market at the same price. The contest has spurred on the railroads to put in lines into the Arkansas zinc county and all the authorities agree that when it is thoroughly developed it will prove to be the richest zinc and lead producing territory in the world. All that is needed is the railroads. And so the Iola men who risked their money early in the game on the barren hills of Arkansas are feeling pretty good over the prospect and have dreams that within a few years they will have the joy of seeing the product of their own mines shipped here to the Iola smelters and smelted. The world is using more smelter every year, and the increase in electrical machines, which is a greater each year, he ps the zinc market. The Iola smelters have gas to last them twenty years and then some, and the guarantee of a good market for their product means extensions and continuous operation. And that means the continuous operation of Iola's extension.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart, and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is no shing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25 cents per package.

Grading the Brick Plant Switch. The grading gang finished their work for one of the switches to the cement works early in the week and the track layers completed the full switch Saturday. Sunday the first cars of material were run the full length of the switch, right into the grounds next the buildings. The grading gang has been transferred to the brick plant switch and will finish it before returning to the work at the other place. This switch can be completed, it is thought, in about a week. Then the other at the cement plant. And the latter works will have to have three or four dummy lines running from building to building and to the stone quarries. The stone will be taken from the ridge near Northrup's ford at first, and there is enough here to last a century or two.

"An Empty Sack Cannot Stand Upright." Neither can poor, weak thin blood nourish and sustain the physical system. For strength of nerves and muscles there must be pure, rich, vigorous blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard preparation for the blood and its many remarkable cures and the fact that it does everybody good who takes it prove it is just what you need if you are weak and languid.

Hood's Pills do not gripe. All druggists, 25cts.

Misplaced confidence item from Wellington: A girl of that place agreed to stand good for a tailor made suit for a young brakeman. He cashed his pay check, left town and she had to pay the bill. Now she looks herself ill treated. Had he married her she might have discovered his meanness too late.

SOME SPECIFIC CHARGES AGAINST JUDGE STILLWELL.

A few days ago the REGISTER observed that the only charge against Judge Stillwell was that he had held the office long enough. In conversation with a resident of the south part of the county, however, we learn that two other charges, and very serious ones, are made against him. One is that he turned loose a girl who had been convicted of poisoning her mother; and the other is that in the trial of the Cramer murder case he asked such questions of the doctors that Cramer was acquitted on the ground of insanity. The charge that Judge Stillwell had deliberately turned two murderers loose upon society is so inherently absurd that it would seem to need no contradiction; but as we are assured it is seriously made, a few plain statements regarding the cases alluded to may not be out of place.

The first case is doubtless that of Frankie Morris, who was accused of having poisoned her mother for the sake of securing her life insurance and was tried in Neosho county in 1884 or '5, if our memory serves. The trial resulted in a verdict of guilty. A motion for a new trial was made and granted, Judge Stillwell believing that the evidence did not warrant the verdict. Before the time set for the new trial the county attorney became convinced that the charge could not be sustained and dismissed the case. The girl then brought suit in the United States court to recover the insurance due on her mother's life. The insurance company set up as a defense that Frankie Morris had murdered her mother. The case was tried on that issue before David J. Brewer, now one of the Justices of the United States Supreme Court, and the jury returned a verdict for Miss Morris, thus completely vindicating the correctness of Judge Stillwell's action in granting a new trial. In this connection it might be added that in 1887, two years after the trial and when all the facts concerning it were still fresh in the public mind, Judge Stillwell was nominated by the Republicans of the district for reelection, and was endorsed by all the other parties, and re-elected without opposition. This fact alone would seem pretty effectually to settle the charge number one.

Now as to charge number two: This was also a Neosho county case, one Charlie Cramer being accused of murdering a Dr. Barth. The case was tried sometime during Judge Stillwell's second term, in 1888, we believe, and was of course a jury trial. It was a celebrated case which we remember very well, and both sides were represented by able counsel. The defense was insanity and the verdict was acquittal. That is all there is of it. The charge that the Judge asked such questions of witnesses as compelled an acquittal, or interfered in any other way to secure this verdict, is absurd. The charge was not heard of in the campaign which followed in 1891 when Judge Stillwell was again unanimously nominated by the Republicans, and elected, in spite of the wave of Populism which swept away so many other candidates, by more than a thousand majority. It would seem to be rather a late day to dig it up now.

The managers of Mr. Lapham's campaign are loudly claiming his election. They must place a very low estimate upon the intelligence of the people of this district if they hope to accomplish Judge Stillwell's defeat by charging him with judicial atrocities alleged to have been committed from ten to fourteen years ago, but which have in all this time utterly escaped the attention of every intelligent person, newspaper and political party in the district.

The Storms of Cape Hatteras.

Another popular belief has been disposed of. "Stormy Hatteras" has long been a terror to ocean voyagers. But William E. Curtis, who has just made a trip past it, writes: "The voyage from New York is delightful. People always expect a little weather off Cape Hatteras, but the captain of our ship says that is a popular delusion. He declares that Hatteras has no more storms than any other point on the earth's surface. The land projects into the Atlantic and makes hasty sailing along that coast in bad weather, and there have been terrible disasters from time to time; therefore, Capt. Suckeforth says that Cape Hatteras has unjustly got a bad name. He has been sailing this course for a number of years—I have forgotten how many—and declares that he has never met with a gale in the latitude of Hatteras."

Lily of the Valley Poison.

That delightfully fragrant and graceful flower, the lily of the valley, is denominated by the German papers, as under its simple beauty veiling a deadly poison. It is stated that both the stalks and the flowers of this lovely plant contain uric acid.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The United States supreme court yesterday granted leave to the state of Louisiana to file a bill for an injunction against the state of Texas, prohibiting the enforcement of a yellow fever quarantine in connection with the latter state. The question of jurisdiction was argued by Attorney Farrar on behalf of Louisiana and by Attorney General Smith for Texas.

TWO TRIBES AT WAR

Delawares and Cherokees Arrayed Against Each Other in Court.

DELAWARES FIGHT FOR THEIR HOMES

Cherokees Battle for the Valuable Deposits of Oil, Coal and Other Minerals That Underlie the Delaware Homes.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Richard C. Adams, who is in the city representing the Delaware Indians, says:

"The vast majority of the American people are in progress in their country. The tomahawk and the scalping knife, the bow and arrow, the war club and the Winchester are not the weapons, but the struggle is none the less animated, despite its bloodlessness."

The tribes arrayed against each other are the Delawares and the Cherokees, and as allies the latter have powerful corporations of various phases, who will eventually get all the spoils in the battle for their homes. Their opponents are battling for the valuable deposits of oil, coal and other minerals that underlie these homes. The preliminary skirmishes are going on in the United States court of claims and the interior department, but the battle royal will be fought in congress. The only treaty made with the Delawares which was faithfully kept, was one made between them and William Penn, 217 years ago.

Under an agreement made between the Delawares and Cherokees in 1897, it was provided that the Delawares should purchase from the Cherokees for their occupancy at $1 an acre, such a quantity of land situated east of the ninety-sixth degree west longitude as they might select, in the aggregate amounting to 160 acres for each individual of the Delaware tribe. It was further agreed that the Delawares should also pay to the Cherokees a sum of money which should equal the same proportion to the then existing Cherokee national fund, that the number of Delawares removing into the Indian territory should sustain to the whole number of Cherokees residing in the nation, and secured to the Delawares the same rights in the territory. It was found that 95 Delawares would comprise those moving in as agreed, which at 160 acres each required the purchase of 15,200 acres. The proportion of this number of Delawares to the Cherokees was found to be 1 to 1.78. The Delawares accordingly paid $157,000 for the land and $121,212.27 for citizenships. The total of both sums was paid May 12, 1898, by a transfer upon the trust fund books of the treasury department of bonds and stocks from the account of the Delawares to the credit of the Cherokees.

The Cherokees now claim that the Delawares have no distinct rights in the Cherokee nation. The Delawares claim the right to select 15,200 acres of land and in addition to this have an equal right with every native-born Cherokee in all the remaining lands and funds of the Cherokee nation, for which they paid, as per agreement in 1897. The rights of the Delawares under this agreement were never seriously questioned by the Cherokees, until it was discovered that immediately valuable mineral deposits underlaid their land. Their present fight with the Cherokees means for them immense wealth or pauperism.

A Sensational Burglary.

London, Oct. 24.—Late yesterday evening it was announced that a sensational burglary had taken place at the Savoy hotel, London, where the room of Mrs. Stockwell, of New York, widow of a New York jeweler, was entered and robbed, it is understood, of jewelry valued at $10,000 and bank notes and other negotiable currency to the amount of £5,000.

Will Get an Orphan's College.

Denver, Col., Oct. 24.—The will of the late George W. Clayton, who bequeathed $1,000,000 to the city of Denver for an orphan's college, was admitted to probate yesterday in the county court. The contest of the will which was threatened by a brother and other heirs of the deceased has been abandoned.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN

White Ribboners Celebrate the Silver Jubilee of the W. C. T. U.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Great Advance Made in the Cause of Purity. Total Abstinence and Prohibition—Consumption of Alcoholic Drinks Growing Less—Treasurer's Report.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 21.—White Ribboners to the number of nearly 500 are in Seattle participating in the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance union and celebrating in song, in prayer and in joyful thanksgiving the silver jubilee of the organization. Yesterday the convention was formally opened by the national president, Mrs. L. M. H.

MRS. LILLIAN M. H. STEVENS.

Stevens. Then came reports of officers and miscellaneous exercises. In the evening Gov. Rogers, in behalf of the state of Washington; Mayor T. J. Humes, speaking for the city of Seattle, which has the distinction of entertaining the delegates; Judge Roger Greene, for the chamber of commerce; Rev. Hugh Gilchrist, for the churches of the city; Miss Mary L. Page, state president and Mrs. Mary B. Reese, local president, welcomed the delegates to the city and state. The best summary of the work done by the W. C. T. U. was furnished in the report of the national president, Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens. She said:

"This is not alone the closing year of the century but of our quarter-century's existence as a society. Doubtless there are at the present time more total abstinents in our country, according to the population, than there has ever been in any other period of our history. The greatest gain, however, has been made during the last quarter of a century."

Since the first convention great advance has been made in the cause of purity, total abstinence and prohibition. Better laws bearing on questions of the purity and sanctity of the home have been enacted, among them laws raising the age of prohibition for girls under 18 to 21, instead of 16, and in some states as high as 18 years.

The consumption of alcoholic drinks is growing less year after year. There is only about one-half as much consumed per capita in the United States as there was a quarter of a century ago. This marks us as the most temperate of all nations. For some years as the use of distilled liquors decreased, there was an increase in the use of malt liquors, but during the last four years there has been a steady decrease of the latter, which certainly is most encouraging when we consider the large influx of foreigners with their beer-drinking propensities.

We cannot be too thankful for the great influence exerted by those standing at the head of some of the great industries in requiring total abstinence of their employees. In reply to questions sent out by the United States department of labor, it appeared that among those discriminating against drink were 90 per cent. of the railroads, 70 per cent. of the manufacturers, 88 per cent. of the traders and 72 per cent. of the agriculturists—the majority of these forbidding the use of intoxicants by employees, while some prohibit it only while the employees are on duty."

We record the action of Secretary Long in banishing drink from the navy as a great victory on the right side of temperance reform.

Each time we read the bill passed by congress banning the drink, content from the army, we are reminded of the fact that anyone, whatever his personal opinion might be regarding the use of strong drink, could place such a construction upon its words as that of Attorney General Griggs, supported by ex-Secretary Alger. We cannot believe the country will submit to such a mutilation of law so plainly worded and so fairly construed. Let us do all we can to bring about the settlement of this question which involves so much of interest to the home and to the nation, and it will never be settled until it is settled right."

We must do all we can to insure the passage of the bill to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors in soldiers' homes, emigrant stations and other public buildings. It will be passed at the next congress.

Mrs. Helen M. Barker, the national treasurer, reported a balance of $5,435. The Willard memorial fund amounts to $3,268. The life membership fund received during the year was $2,106. The bequests aggregated $2,000. The organizing work cost $1,200 and the superintendents had expended over $7,000.

Lima A Man's Testimony.

I have obtained excellent results from the use of Foley's Kidney Cure. It relieved my back-ache and severe pain over the hips. It toned up my system and gave me new vim and energy. I regard it as an honest and reliable remedy for all kidney diseases. It makes no false claims but does what it says when given a fair trial. I certainly recommend it.
